EDITORIAL POLICY

Behavior Science Notes regularly reports news of the activities of HRAF in facilitating research in the behavior sciences. In addition, the editors welcome contributions from other scholars, in particular those reporting methodological or theoretical results of cross-cultural research, preliminary results of field research, and descriptive or theoretical research based on substantive ethnographic data. Annotated bibliographies on specific areas or topics of ethnographic interest are especially welcome. Contributions should not exceed 50 manuscript pages, and articles of 25-30 manuscript pages in length are preferred. Authors are requested to submit an abstract of 50-75 words with each article. Such abstracts will automatically be considered for publication in Abstracts in Anthropology. Material may be reprinted only with the written permission of the publisher.

BOOK REVIEWS

Behavior Science Notes will list and occasionally review books, monographs, and longer articles reporting on cross-cultural research. Studies employing a sample large enough for meaningful statistical techniques will be given preference. Address all books and inquiries to Book Review Editor, Behavior Science Notes, Box 2054, Yale Station, New Haven, Conn. 06520.
